Notes

Products contained in this document shall generally conform to performance standards unless otherwise noted. The manufacturer's instructions and specifications shall be the primary consideration. If there is any conflict of requirements, the terms and conditions of the contract shall generally prevail.

While the manufacturer's instructions shall be followed, the contractor shall verify that the Manufacturer's instructions and the design documents are consistent. If there is any conflict, the contractor shall consult with the Manufacturer's representative and the design team to resolve the conflict.
